INTRODUCTION
16 OCTOBER 1986

doc I

COVERAGE

The lists were developed by the Central Library primarily for its own internal use in documenting Department of Public Health (DPH) publications. Only publications that were authored by DPH and have not been published elsewhere have been included. Therefore, neither journal articles nor reprints of federal pamphlets with a division's name added are included.

The publications listed do not constitute the entire collection of DPH publications available in the Central Library. They are items collected from 1983 to July 1986. Some pre-1983 items are also included because the Central Library obtained the items during the collection period.

ARRANGEMENT

There are two lists: one arranged alphabetically by title, the other alphabetically by the division that was responsible for producing the publication. Alphabetization was done by the word processor which has its own rules, such as "numbers are put in numerical order at the end of the alphabet"; e.g. "1985 Cancer..." comes before "1986 Annual...".

The division list doubles somewhat as a subject list. Once the list is entered into a database on a microcomputer, a subject list as well as format changes may be forthcoming.

An attempt was made to verify authorship, determine dates where none was printed, and correct errors on title pages. Authorship is given to the most specifically defined DPH unit that appears on the publication; e.g., WIC not Family Health Services. Publications without any determinable authorship are listed under "[Administration]." The titles of the publications are listed exactly as they appear on the cover page. This means that annual reports of the Department will appear in a variety of places in the alphabetical title list. To find all the annual reports, it is best to check under "[Administration]" in the alphabetical list by division. Errors on the publications are noted by "(sic)." Omissions are noted by words in brackets.

The library originally listed separately each item, including newsletters, both because the library intends to barcode each item and because the divisions erred on occasion in numbering the issues. However, the list is a secondary way of notifying the other DPH divisions of what is going on outside their own division, so some attempt was made to condense the newsletter listings.

COPIES

For copies of an item, please contact the division listed as the author. (See next page for telephone numbers and addresses.) Some items may no longer be available from the division but they are still part of the Central Library's collection. The items should also be in the collections of the state depository libraries such as the Boston Public Library and Springfield Public Library. The Central Library cooperates with the state document depository program and sends copies of every item to the State Library for distribution to the depositories.
